DH MANDATORY RUNS: Racers must complete two mandatory runs to ensure they are familiar with the course for safety reasons. It is not necessary that the two runs are completed on race day – runs on training day count.

COURSE SIGNAGE AND TAPING: Mountain bike race course marking consists of a mixture of signs and taping to indicate the correct course and warn of any dangers or obstacles. It is not required or feasible to have both sides of the entire course taped.

Course tape: is used to define edges of the course and ensure that riders travel around the extremities of the course. It is also used to keep spectators and traffic off the course and in some cases is used to hold the riders back from dangerous areas. If there are sections of the course that are not taped the rider may stray off the intended course but MUST re-enter at the next section of course that is taped on both sides. For example, if there is tape on both sides of the course on the corners of a switchback area and none in the straight sections between the corners the rider must travel through from one section of taped course to the other. Consider the sections of tape on both sides of the course as “gates” that you must go through. The racer cannot bypass the corners simply because the straight sections are not taped. Tape on only one side of the course is also used as an extension of a double taped section to ensure that a rider travels around the extremities of the course. For example, a rider may enter the start of a long sweeping corner through a taped “gate” and then the tape may continue only along the length of the inside of the corner to prevent shortcuts. If a rider goes off course in a taped section, he or she must re-enter the course at the same location that the tape was broken through.

Course signs: will generally be placed on the right side of the course and are intended to keep the racer on course by pointing out the direction of travel or to warn of obstacles or danger.

- Single arrows pointing up indicate the course continues on ahead.
- Single arrows pointing either left or right indicate a sharp turn or a path to take at a junction.
- Single arrows down indicate an area that requires caution
- Double arrows down indicate an area of moderate difficulty
- Triple arrows down indicate an area of extreme difficulty
- Bypass routes around the most difficult obstacles will be indicated by arrows pointing to the “Hard” and the “Easy” routes – rider’s choice.
- Triple wavy lines indicate a water crossing
- Parallel lines indicate a bridge crossing
- An X indicates a wrong direction

MARSHALS: Marshals will give a whistle blast whenever a rider passes their station. This is their way of communicating an approaching rider to the next marshal down course. They will also use whistles as well as coloured flags to warn and communicate with the riders:

- 1 whistle blast: racer passing marshal location
- 3 whistle blasts and yellow flag: continue on, but use caution (usually tape down or a crash in front of the racer)
- 5 whistle blasts and red flag: stop racing, the course is closed and racing is stopped (usually for a course hold in an emergency situation. Under this condition all racers MUST STOP! If this happens during a race run inform the nearest marshal and then proceed back to the top to for a re-run once instructed to do so.
